

WAY OF GUNFU

Some Monks become specialists in hand to hand combat, while others become experts in specific weapons, and yet others learn to channel their inner power to create supernatural effects. Monks that master the Way of Gunfu blend melee and ranged techniques to fight unharmed.

Class Level	Feature
3rd	Path of the Firefight
6th	Ki Dodge, Ki infused Bullets
11th	Interrupting Strike
17th	Focused Beatdown

PATH OF THE FIREFIGHT

When you choose this tradition at 3rd level, your special martial arts training leads you to master the use of certain weapons. You gain the following benefits.

Firearm proficiency. You gain proficiency with firearms, which includes using them as improvised weapons. These are considered monk weapons for you.

One with the gun. You may use a firearm to replace one unarmed strike you make with a flurry of blows. At level 11 you may replace both unarmed attacks from your flurry of blows this way.

KI DODGE

At 6th level, you have gained the ability to focus your senses to dodge any attack. As a reaction, when an attack hits you but before damage is assigned, you may use an amount of ki equal to the difference between your AC and the triggering attack. When you do, your AC increases to be just enough to cause the attack to miss. Your AC will stay that high until the beginning of your next turn.

KI INFUSED BULLETS

At 6th level, you extend your ki into your Firearms, granting you the following benefit.

Magic Firearm. Your attacks with firearms (including when you use them as improvised weapons) count as magical for the purpose of overcoming resistance and immunity to nonmagical attacks and damage

INTERRUPTING STRIKE

At 11th level, when you use your Ki Dodge class feature, you may also make an attack against the creature that triggered your Ki Dodge if they are within range. When you make this attack roll, you gain a bonus to the attack and damage rolls equal to the ki you spent on the Ki Dodge.

FOCUSED BEATDOWN

At 17th level, on your turn, you can take one additional action. From the moment you use this additional action, until the end of your turn, all attacks you make are made with advantage.

Once you use this feature, you must finish a short or long rest before you can use it again
